

Farm Visitor Guidelines

Farms are special places and growing food is one of the most important jobs in the world. We are glad you will be visiting our growing operation.

Here are a few tips to help make your visit a good experience.

- Make arrangements ahead of time to visit the farm operation. Dress appropriately for your visit. Wear closed-toed shoes, long sleeves, and a hat. It's also a good idea to bring a plastic bottle with drinking water but leave it outside the growing area.
- Your shoes can bring unwelcome visitors to the farm. Please wear shoes that have not been worn to other farms.
- Remember to wash your hands and sign the visitor log.
- Stay on the paths and watch where you step. Plant leaves and stems are fragile, and the ground may be uneven in places.
- Insects are important plant visitors so watch out for them, especially if you are picking produce. Lots of bugs, bees and animals live near plants.
- Ask before picking any vegetables. Some vegetables look ripe before they are ready to be harvested.
- Listen to your farm guide and please don't leave the group.
- No pets allowed! Gardens and produce farms are not a good place to bring your four-footed friends, so please leave them at home.
- Please don't leave any trash, food, gum, or tobacco on the farm.

We hope you enjoy your visit. Tell us what you liked most!
